COLD STORAGE LAW NOT TO BE REPEALED

Gans Says Committee Will Fight to Retain Act of 1913.

HARRISBURG, April 1.—The cold storage law will not be repealed at this session of the Legislature. The Clark bill to repeal the act of 1913 in the House Committee on Health and Sanitation, and the members of that committee are almost unanimously opposed to repealing the existing law.

Representative Sigmond J. Gans, of Philadelphia, chairman of the committee and sponsor of the act of 1913, said today that he would fight to the end any effort to repeal the cold storage law.

"The committee is with me in the fight," he said. "They are nearly all of them opposed to repealing the present law. That does not mean, however, that fair or reasonable amendments could not be reported out, either with a negative recommendation or a favorable one."

BIGELOW "MACHINE" TO SERVE HIGHWAY HEADS FOR A TIME

Commissioner Retires Today—No Announcement of Successor.

HARRISBURG, April 1.—Edward M. Bigelow retires today as Highway Commissioner of Pennsylvania, but no announcement of his successor has as yet been made by Governor Brumbaugh.

With Bigelow, his chief engineer, Samuel W. Foster, is also expected to go. His resignation has been received, but the Governor has not announced whether he has accepted it or not.

The successors of both Bigelow and Foster will be made known within a few days. They will most probably be Robert J. Cunningham, deputy controller of Allegheny County, for Highway Commissioner, and William D. Uhler, of Philadelphia, for chief engineer.

Work on the State roads, especially on the dirt roads, must be started before May 1, or they will be beyond repair this year, according to engineers. The entire reorganization of the State Highway Department will not be made before then, but will be gradually worked out by the Governor. In the meantime, the new heads of the department will use the Bigelow "machine."

"MOVIE" LAW REPEALERS DIE

Action on Stein and Stern Bills "Indefinitely Postponed."

HARRISBURG, April 1.—Both bills to repeal the present State moving picture censorship law have been killed by the Judiciary General Committee of the House. Representative William H. Wilson, of Philadelphia, chairman of the committee, announced that action on the bills, which were introduced by Representatives Stein, of Allegheny, and Stern, of Philadelphia, has been "indefinitely postponed."

The motion picture exhibitors and exchange men will now concentrate their efforts to bring about the passage of a censor bill that will curtail the powers of the State censor as much as possible. They will also make an effort to have the scale of charges for censoring films reduced.

SMALL COUNCIL BILL TO DIE

HARRISBURG, April 1.—The Republican Organization leaders in the Legislature have planned unanimously to kill the Council bill for a smaller paid Council of 15 members for Philadelphia.

The bill was reported out of the House Committee on Municipal Corporations last night with a negative recommendation. It would reduce the total number of members in the Council from the scheduled 20 to 15 and this is not expected.

LEGISLATORS VISIT CITY INSTITUTIONS

Members of Appropriations Committees Face Difficult Task.

Members of the Appropriations Committees of the State Senate and House of Representatives today made an inspection of the larger charitable and educational institutions in this city which have asked for State aid during the next two years.

Senator Clarence J. Buckman, chairman of the Senate Committee, said the committee would be in this city for only three days, but would return later to finish the investigation. He said the committees had a difficult task this year because of the lack of available money.

PROGRESS REPORTS HEARD BY FRIENDS

Quakers Listen to Account of Educational and Missionary Growth.

Reports of educational and missionary activity among their own children, the Indians of New York State and exiled Russians in Western Canada, were considered this afternoon at the Yearly Meeting of Friends at Fourth and Arch streets, which followed general meetings for worship this morning in meeting houses over the city.

At the morning meetings for worship, old ministers, with broad-brimmed hats and plainly cut coats, inspired by the "inner light," almost chanted exhortations to the brethren and especially to the young from their seats in the "gallery," which faces the meeting and often holds as many as 20 or 30 ministers of both sexes.

Nearly all the women ministers wear the poke bonnets and plain black or gray dress, with small white collars, which were worn by Elizabeth Fry, Guglielma Springett Penn and other early Quakeresses. Their high-pitched mystical sing-song was interspersed with the chanting of the men, in urging the young to forsake temporal pleasures and live spiritual lives in expectation of the life to come.

The reading of the report on Westwood School, which has been growing in membership since its founding in 1792, near West Chester, which has been growing ever since. Nearly every adult member of the society can look back to his school days there. Some of the members say that as a "match factory" for the city, the present year's meeting, in a sense, owes its existence to the school.

Both boys and girls attend for from seven to three years, and are thoroughly imbued with Quaker principles. None but Friends are admitted to the school. Great interest was expressed in the reading of the report on work among the Doukaboras, a group of Russian immigrants in Saskatchewan, Canada, who fled the oppression of the Czar's government 15 or 20 years ago and have received financial and religious aid from the Friends ever since.

UNION TRANSFER RAISES RATE IN CHECKING SHORE BAGGAGE

Public Must Pay More When Tickets From Camden Are Used.

The refusal of the Union Transfer Company to check baggage from points in this city to Atlantic City on tickets purchased in Camden materially lessens the saving that can be effected by purchasing a ticket across the Delaware. Instead of paying the advanced rate asked for, the Camden purchaser of a ticket to Atlantic City will have to pay a flat rate of 50 cents to have his baggage taken to the Camden terminal and delivered in Atlantic City. If the ticket is purchased on this side, the charge for baggage delivery is as low as 25 cents.

The company explains the charge by stating that it acts merely as agent of the railroads, and the latter are not allowed to check baggage other than that between points called for on the ticket presented. On a Camden ticket, therefore, the company says it cannot check baggage from Philadelphia, but must carry it to Camden. This will cost 50 cents for each piece. The ferry ticket will not enter in, because it carries no baggage privileges.

Ward Boss Wears Red Rose

"Must be losing his head," said Bendix, chief assistant to Ward Boss Sledge, of Ring City. Never before, Bendix asserted, had the boss worn a flower. However, Sledge hadn't lost his head. It was his heart that was affected. George Randolph Chester, special feature writer for such occasions, tells the whole story why the boss wears a red rose and what came of it in a "Tale of Red Roses," which begins in the EVENING LEDGER Saturday, April 2.

GIRL SUFFRAGIST MAKES CLEVER SKETCHES

USES ART AND VOICE FOR SUFFRAGE CAUSE

Miss Katherine Milhous An Ardent Believer in Right of Woman to Vote.

A woman may scrub the floor, sell merchandise, nurse the sick and work in the factories and yet not lose her femininity, but she is considered to lose it if she should vote.

This condition is illustrated by a number of drawings made by an ardent suffragist who is also an illustrator. Miss Katherine Milhous, a student at the School of Industrial Art, Broad and Pine streets and living in Pitman, N. J., is the person who has drawn the sketches. She is 20 years old and says she has been a suffragist ever since she was born.

Miss Milhous is very deft with pen and pencil and is studying hard to be an illustrator, desiring to make illustrating her life's work. She desires also to practice her art so that it will aid suffrage. Consequently many sketches and drawings presenting pictorial arguments in favor of woman suffrage have been done by her.

"I cannot talk with any force," Miss Milhous says naively, "so I decided to draw what I thought and hoped that that would have some weight."

She is a small, slender girl, with dark hair and large, brown eyes that speak her sincere belief in what she says when she tells you that there is no real substantial argument against woman suffrage. "Anything against it is 'crazy,'" she adds, after stating that simple justice demands that women have the same right to vote as men.

DETECTIVE TUCKER DYING

The condition of Detective Harry Tucker took a turn for the worse today, and physicians at the Episcopal Hospital fear that his light for life may be fruitless.

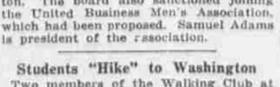

Tucker was shot last Thursday by Jacob Miller, who also murdered Detective James Manely. The physicians hold out no hope for recovery.

Tucker had a sinking spell at the hospital last night and his wife was summoned to his bedside. The detective has seven children, who also spent a sleepless night in the hospital. He has a bullet near his spine, and while an operation would have saved his life he has not recovered sufficient strength to permit the doctors to probe for the shot.

NO INSANITY VERDICT IN COHEN MURDER

Jury Does Not Include Derangement Idea in Decision, But Coroner Intimates It.

No mention of the mental condition of Henry Barnett Cohen at the time he shot his grandmother, Mrs. Clotilda F. Cohen, and then killed himself, was made today in the verdict of the Coroner's jury at the inquest. The jury found the two met deaths "from gunshot wounds in the head."

Coroner Knight, in his charge to the jury, said young Cohen was temporarily deranged, but did not instruct that this be included in the verdict. The Coroner based his statement on the testimony of Dr. Hubley R. Owen, who testified Cohen had been extremely nervous, that he was known as eccentric and had been under the care of a physician for this trouble.

No member of the Cohen family attended the inquest. The big revolver, with which Cohen committed the murder and suicide, was exhibited. There was a craning of necks in the audience and a general gasp when the heavy, black weapon was held up by a detective.

Relatives, who said members of the family were satisfied that the motive for the murder was Cohen's desire to end the suffering of his grandmother, made no effort to testify on this point. Lieutenant Albert M. Cohen, brother of the suicide, filed with the Coroner yesterday a sworn statement that Henry Barnett Cohen had been in a Chicago hospital undergoing treatment for a mental disorder.

The funerals will be held tomorrow morning. Services will be private, and burial will be in Mount Sinai Cemetery, Frankford. Witnesses sat by the bodies in the home of Mr. Cohen, who is president of the Chamber of Commerce, again last night, in accordance with the Jewish custom.

Owing to the fact that the services will be private, Battery A, National Guard of Pennsylvania, of which Cohen formerly was treasurer, will not take part in them. It was the wish of the young man that his old troopmates sound taps or fire a volley over his grave.

ATE "APRIL FOOL" BREAKFASTS

This day of pranks and practical jokes was fittingly observed by members of the Philadelphia Hotel Clerks' Association and the Philadelphia Night Clerks' Club by an April Fool Breakfast at the Hotel Bingham. Elaborate plans, carried out by committees of both organizations, resulted in the morning feast being a great success.

The membership scope of the Philadelphia Hotel Clerks' Association was extended to include hotel clerks throughout the State, by action of the Executive Committee last night, at the Hotel Walden. The board also sanctioned joining the United Business Men's Association, which had been proposed. Samuel Adams is president of the association.

The walking enthusiasts, who started from the dormitories at 5:30 o'clock, are Leon M. ALLEGED STRAW BAIL GIVER CAUGHT AFTER TWO YEARS

James St. Claire, Alias Gardner, Held for United States Court.

Straw bail given nearly two years ago resulted today in the arrest of James St. Claire, alias James Gardner, of 204 South 18th street. He was captured by C. R. Nixon, an agent of the Department of Justice, after a tedious search which led him to various sections of the city.

The bail, it is alleged, was given in the case of Salvatore Sgarata, of 9th and Carpenter streets. He obtained false naturalization papers and was arrested. St. Claire, it is alleged, readily became his bondsman.

When Sgarata did not appear for trial in the United States District Court, the Government immediately learned that the bail given was false and sought St. Claire, but all trace of him was lost until today.

St. Claire, according to Nixon, was a member of the straw-bail gang which worked under the direction of "Diamond Toothed Ed" Hanlon. This organization has been wiped out of existence.

SCHOOL "KIDDIES" TURN GARDEN SOIL TODAY

Juvenile Agriculturists' Season Opens With Forty-five School Gardens.

The brown earth felt the toes and the spades of thousands of school children today, when the public school gardens were opened for the spring and summer season.

Appropriate exercises were held at some of the schools, but most of them inaugurated the season by getting to work at once. There are 15 large gardens and 50 small ones, the latter in the school yards. The corps of 25 teachers is under the direction of Miss Caro Miller, supervisor of school gardens.

Healthy occupation for mentally deficient children will be provided this year on a large scale. Five of the gardens having been reserved for them. Ten of the plots are for kindergarten pupils, and that at the Robert Morris School, 21st and Thompson streets, will be made into a model garden for normal school teachers. The loss of the largest garden of all, that at the Wainwright School, 4th and Porter streets, through a real estate development, has been offset through the acquisition of one almost as large on the Girard estate, adjoining the Edgar Allan Poe School, at 22d and Ritner streets.
